

Wekesa O. Madzimoyo

Wekesa O. Madzimoyo is co-director of AYA EDUCATIONAL INSTITUTE based in the Atlanta, GA metro area. He is a widely known educator, researcher, consultant and trainer. He has more than seventeen years experience in developing alternative reprogramming and accelerated learning techniques to break the negative social programming experienced by African Americans in education, business, and personal development as a result of racism, classism and sexism.

He is the lead trainer and originator of national workshops: "Healing Oppression's Wounds," "Warriors & Healers," and "Sankofa Math." Using an African-centered frame, African Americans support each other in healing the wounds created by external and internalized oppression starting with ourselves and extending into our community and into our professional lives.

Wekesa has been the prime developer of Mu-Kanda, AYA's "Online Communiversity with Soul." Located in Stone Mountain Georgia, AYA Educational Institute's African-Centered Online Campus offers interactive courses for students and adults: that's real-time interactive learning -- with live instructors.

Through its adult courses, Mu-Kanda has served students in Washington, DC, South Carolina, New York, California, Florida, North Carolina, Illinois and Georgia, where it is based.

Wekesa is a dreamer, a seeker of truth. He has been singularly committed to improving the quality of life for his people and all people (in that order).
